

The children of Joshua Shreve were born after 1713, and the family tabulation as to names is satisfactory. The order of births is unknown. Marriages occur from 1728 to 1750, and Curtises, Shinns and Becks born after those dates may be descendants. Several of those names reside in Burlington Co., but their ancestry is unknown. James Shreve's descendants generally remained in Burlington Co., or N. J. Caleb's emigrated to Virginia, then Pennsylvania, Ohio and the far West. Sarah married her cousin, Thomas Shreve, and the Society of Friends "disowned" them. Mercy Mathis' descendants located generally in the eastern part of N. J., as did Faith Butler's. There may have been other children that died in infancy or unmarried. The tabulation is on the authority of S. H. Shreve.

The tabulation of the family of Caleb Shreve is by authority of the late S. H. Shreve. No further reports have been made of descendants. The children were born after 1713. The Amos Shreve that voted in Burlington Co. in 1739 is probably his son. There are reasons to believe that Joshua Shreve, that married Vashti Rogers, was the child of Amos, and that the daughter, Mary, married John Haines, and left many descendants who remained in New Jersey. Gaskills born after 1737 may be descendants. There may have been others that died in infancy or unmarried.

If Jonathan Shreve had children they were born after 1721. None are reported.

The children of Mary Gibbs were born after 1722. None have been reported.

The descendants of Sarah Ogborne (or Ogbourne) are also unknown, if any they were born after 1724.

David Shreve is only mentioned in his father's will and in the poll book of the election held in Burlington Co., N. J., in 1739. If he had descendants, they were probably born not earlier than 1723.

The genealogy of the descendants of Benjamin Shreve, the youngest child, is the most satisfactory. For several generations they remained in the vicinity of the old homestead, which was duly transmitted to descendants of that branch. The late Samuel H. Shreve, of New York City, was a great, great grandson and took great interest in the latter part of his life in family genealogy, not confining himself to his own branch. All Shreve descendants are indebted to him, and it is a matter of regret that he did not live to see some of his laudable hopes bear fruition, one of which was the purchase of the old homestead by an association of descendants, to be perpetually transmitted to later generations.
