John Saunders Holt was a man of versatile talents, a writer of ability, fluently speaking several languages. Previous to the war he was the finest musical critic in New Orleans, serving in that capacity on the staff of "The Picayune," under the Kendal management, at the same time practicing his legal profession. He was one of the first to volunteer for the invasion of Mexico. For valor on the field at Buena Vista Jefferson Davis presented him with a sword. At this time he acted as interpreter on the staff of the American Commander in Chief. He was an active participant in the war between the States, just before the close of which he was appointed to the position of Judge Advocate, with the rank of Colonel, on the staff of Bushrod Johnson, commanding the Fourth Army Corps of N. Va. For eighteen months he was held as a prisoner at Indianapolis and Camp Morton. After the war he resumed his literary work.
